Left-hand side
for mobile machines, it is the side which is on the left when an observer is facing in the normal forward direction of travel of the machine; and for stationary machines, it is the side which is on the left when an observer is facing the machine

Right-hand side
for mobile machines, it is the side which is on the right when an observer is facing in the normal forward direction of travel of the machine; and for stationary machines, it is the side which is on the left when an observer is facing the machine

Model designation and number
This information enables the operator to identify readily the machine to which the operator's manual belongs.

Serial numbers
Information that enables the operator to locate and identify the whereabouts of serial numbers and/or codes of the major components of the machine, and any additional information necessary for initial communication with a dealer

Safety signs
shall be reproduced in legible size in the operator's manual

Hazards
It is essential that any known hazards relating to the use of the machine, and any restrictions for it use by classes of persons (such as children) be clearly stated

Operating information include the general specifications and description of the machine or equipment, identification of controls, instructions for proper operation of machine, and troubleshooting information

Accessories and attachments
This category shall inform the operator of any choice of authorized accessories and attachments and how they affect the safety, operation, and maintenance of the machine.

Maintenance schedules
Where maintenance tasks are required to be carried out at specific intervals (such as time, distance, running hours, completed operations) they should be summarized in tabular form with further details, if necessary, in the text

Specialized tasks
Where maintenance tasks require specialist knowledge or resources

Storage
This category shall provide the operator with instructions and information, including precautions to be taken and any tools or special equipment required, to prepare the machinery for

_____

Reception
Unpacking instructions should be given and attention drawn to any specific points that need care or special treatment, unless this will be carried out by the dealer. Lifting points, slings, spreaders, etc. should be specified.

Transportation
Instructions for preparing the machinery for transportation, including precautions and information about the tools required, should be included

Installation
Detailed instructions should be given about the operations necessary to install the machine and to bring it to full working condition

Initial set-up
Procedures for the initial set-up of the machine should be detailed in full. Any special tools or testing and calibration equipment should be listed.

Environment
The required environment for handling, installation and storage should be stated.

Specifications
This category shall include all relevant dimensions and technical data necessary to assist the operator achieve a higher standard of operational performance and reliability

Dismantling and disposal
This category shall inform the operator of the action to be taken on the completion of the useful life of the machine or its parts, with instructions on dismantling and disposal

Warranty
It is important that manufacturers draw the operator's attention to any action which may invalidate the warranty

Alphabetical index
A document of more than 32 pages should have an alphabetical index

Parts list
should contain sufficient information (such as part number and description) for each item so that the correct replacement part can be obtained.

Parts lists should indicate those replacement assemblies, and parts which the operator is expected to identify.

Protection
For initial shipment, the manual should be sealed inside a transparent, water-and-oil-resistant plastic envelope.